Gifts for the Newborn King

For Jesus' birthday,
I would give Him the gift of....

Directions for Classroom Book: Gifts for the Newborn King

Have students think of a gift they would like to give Baby Jesus. In my classroom, we begin this activity with a discussion of things that Jesus would want for his birthday (using kind words, sharing, etc.).

Students illustrate their gift to Baby Jesus. You can dictate their words in the gift if necessary. Next have student color and cut out the present below. Paste the top part of the box on the matching top part of the box on your classroom page.

This can also be done as a home project. In addition, this lends itself to a great bulletin board. I actually hang these up on a bulletin board first, then put them in a book to be shared at home after Christmas.

Make Your Own Nativity Scene

Color, cut, and paste the pieces to make your own nativity scene. A manger is included. However, I prefer to use popsicle sticks to create the outline of the manger on a large piece of construction paper, then let the kids fill in the manger with the people and animals.
